Vision Board Printables

Category tiles, affirmation slips, and intention cards, ready to print, cut, and pin.

The board is not decoration. It is a daily rehearsal of the assumption.

Using The Board With Assumption Practice

A vision board works when it is treated as a record of fact, not a wish-list. Pin only what you are willing to claim as yours. Place it where your eyes fall without effort, ideally the first thing seen in the morning and the last at night.

Cut the category tiles and arrange them first. Then pin beneath each one only images and slips that belong to a life already lived. When you pass the board, do not yearn at it. Glance at it the way you glance at a photograph of something that has already happened.

Once a week, stand before it for one minute and affirm quietly: this is mine, and it is done. Then go about your day. The work is assumption; the board is only the prompt.

Category Tiles

Cut along the hairlines. Pin one tile per area of life, then add your own images beneath it.

Affirmation Slips

Cut and pin among your images, or carry one in a pocket for the week.

“It is done.”	“I am already there.”
“This is mine by assumption.”	“I am supplied.”
“I am chosen.”	“I remember when this was only a wish.”
“It came to pass.”	“My world obeys my state.”
“I am the evidence.”	“Done, done, done.”
“It was always mine.”	“I occupy the end.”

Intention Cards

Write one assumption in the present tense, sign it, date it, and pin it at the centre of the board. When it comes to pass, replace it and keep the old one in an envelope. The envelope fills faster than you expect.
